Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

Pursue world-class research and make an original contribution to knowledge that creates real-world impact.

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) at Curtin University is a research-intensive program designed for aspiring scholars, innovators, and professionals who want to lead new thinking in their field. It equips you with advanced skills in inquiry, analysis, and academic writing while empowering you to design and deliver a research project of international standing.

With strong supervision support from Curtin, and access to research networks across the globe, you'll become part of a collaborative research community addressing challenges that matter.

The program is ideal for professionals looking to deepen expertise, academics seeking faculty pathways, or innovators aiming to solve industry-specific problems through structured research.

PhD candidates may have the opportunity to conduct research or attend conferences internationally, including research visits to Curtin's other campuses.
